Marry Young?
Marry Old?

When Jeb Crowell's daughter, Sue, married nineteen-year-old "Slim" Blake, a lot of folks (especially older ones) began to shake their heads. Young marriages! Tut, tut!

So I looked up some figures. It's true, young American girls and boys marry younger than in other countries. And where do you suppose they had the least chance? I won't name it, but maybe you've guessed. One of those countries that before the war suppressed all individual freedom and tolerance.

That's why I'm not worried about our younger married couples. They were raised in a country that respects one another's right—a country of tolerance and temperance (a lot of bridegrooms are ex-G.I.'s, and it looked to me like their favorite beverage was beer!)

From where I sit, it isn't when you marry that's important. It's the all-important spirit of tolerance and understanding you bring to marriage.

Sign Words for Deaf Invented by Briton

Gesture System Aimed to Help Handicapped Children.

LONDON. — A new system of hand gestures whereby the child deaf from birth will think and express himself in terms of words produced by gestures has been developed by Sir Richard Paget, 78-year-old British lawyer and physicist.

Sir Richard, who has spent 13 years compounding his new sign language for the education of children born deaf, a task involving the study of primitive gestures in many parts of the world, demonstrated 150 of the 3,000 signs in the vocabulary to the anthropology section of the British Association for the Advancement of Science.

With his hands, fingers and arms moving slowly, he spoke in the sign sentences which he said a child of four could express in the new system.

"We all went to the animal enclosure at the zoo. The monkeys made use laugh. The keeper fed the sea lions with fish. I wish you could have seen it."

Sir Richard announced he was proposing to try the experiment of educating a small group of young children deaf from birth by habitually speaking to them in the sign language, which is totally different from finger spelling.

Instructors will encourage the deaf children themselves to speak in the system, in which every sign is the equivalent of a spoken word.

"A normal child of five has a vocabulary of 2,000 words," Sir Richard said, "and a deaf child leads also to dumbness and mental retardedness.

"If the child deaf from birth has a normal vocabulary of 2,000 of these signs he should be able to learn to lip read as well as the child who has become deaf after learning to speak.

"We can give him a language which is as easy to acquire as a spoken language is to the hearing child."

Housewives Learn More About Safety

Fewer Burned Fingers Show They Are Getting Wise.

CHICAGO.—The American housewife isn't burning her fingers on the kitchen stove as much this year as last. That's because she's becoming increasingly educated on home safety, Thomas Fansler, director of the home safety division of National Safety council, said.

But even so, Fansler said, fatal home accidents will show about an 8 per cent rise this year over last. Home fatalities will rise from 32,700 last year to around 35,000 this year, Fansler predicted.

"The kitchen remains the most dangerous room in the home," he said.

The hazard of the bar of soap in the bathtub is largely a fable of cartoonists, Fansler indicated. Because, he said, figures show the bathroom is the safest room in the house.

Fansler said the increase in home accidents involves children under 5 and adults of the old-age group.

Men have almost as many accidents at home as women — and they're not at home nearly as much. Fansler said that is because women know the foibles of the house better.

"A woman knows when her skillet has a loose handle, but when a man goes into the kitchen to fix his breakfast, he gets burned with it," said Fansler.

The safety executive will call for greater emphasis this year on better home designing.

That's where home safety begins—on the blue prints," he said.

Ten Pin Tips—

By Joe Norris

(This is the second of a series of lessons by Joe Norris, only bowler named to the All-American team eight consecutive times. Norris also has been a member of the world's match game team champions and the ABC and international team champions.)

Station on the Approach

To begin, your station on the approach should be anywhere from 12 to 15 feet back of the foul line, depending upon the length of your stride and the number of steps you use. I employ a five-step approach, and I recommend either a four or five-step delivery for bowlers. A three-step delivery as a rule places too much strain on the arm and left leg, whereas the four or five-step approach permits more momentum and less exertion.

While facing the pins, stand erect but relaxed, your shoulders square to the pins. Rest the ball lightly in the left hand and prepare to make your approach to the foul line in a straight line. (See illustration.)

What's wrong with this pitcher?

THE PITCHER is the umpire, too. He'll call his own pitches—and what kind of a ball game will that be?

We have the same situation in our business. Government—which regulates the electric companies—is in competition with them!

The electric companies recognize their public obligation to supply continuous and dependable service. They have provided America with the most and the best electric service in the world. Electric rates have been lowered steadily until today the average family gets twice as much electricity for its money as it did 20 years ago.

Yet today government sets up politically managed electric agencies and runs them by a different set of rules—they receive subsidies, pay little or no interest on money they borrow . . . pay no Federal taxes.

If it can sell electricity on this basis, government can sell anything else the same way!

We believe that the people who work in our company, as well as the people who have invested their savings in it, deserve the same protection from political attack that most other people still enjoy. When the umpire plays, too, should he call his own pitches?

How women and girls may get wanted relief from functional periodic pain

Cardui is a liquid medicine which many women say has brought relief from the cramp-like agony and nervous strain of functional periodic distress. Here's how it may help:

1 It does like a tonic, thus it may help appetite, aid digestion,* thus help build resistance for the "time" to come.

2 Started 3 days before your time, it should help relieve pain due to purely functional periodic causes.

Try Cardui. If it helps, you'll be glad you did.
